

JOURNAL ENTRIES

Sir Randol Fawkes

1945-1947

www.sirrandolfawkes.com

- The most sensible and incontrovertible truth in this world of ours is that right shall ultimately triumph over wrongful might.
- The noble life is a continuous experience of hard knocks.
- One does not need to go to a University to be educated but he can bring the University right to the head of his bedside.
- Every failure is a triumph when seen aright.
- No man suffers the plight of solitude while he has a great thought.
- A man with a great thought can face and master any fate.
- If the right to lead a free honest and respectable life can be obtained only at the price of ridicule, contempt and discouragement of some of our fellowmen – all I can say is “It’s worth it.”
- It does not matter where a man came from but it does matter where he is going.
- There is a time in the life of every man when he realizes he must change his course of conduct and sometimes swim against the tide and sometimes with it, if it is his desire to triumph in the end.
- Some people try to say that they have a clear conscience when all they have is a bad memory.
- One of the greatest things in life is to strive mightily toward a goal and having attained it, so sit back and marvel at how it was done.
- Upward, onward, always forward is the spirit that shall always command true success.
- Your future, to a larger extent, depends on what you are doing this very moment.

16th April, 1945.

I, Randol Francis Fawkes, being of sound mind, do hereby firmly RESOLVE that I shall hereafter let every thought, every act of mine be decided and weighted in the scale of human values so that whatever I may do may benefit not only one or two individuals but humanity at large, and I do hereby dedicate my life to the service of the Oppressed.

Christ did it, Abraham Lincoln did it Franklin Roosevelt did it, therefore I myself will do it.

God give me the strength strong enough and life long enough to see it through.

Randol F. Fawkes
16/4/45.