

“During my studies for the Bar, I found it helpful to form a mental picture of the type of man I wanted to be. Five years hence in my imagination, I pictured a man that is my future self asking me, my present self, “What kind of life will you hand up to me? Will it be one whose past has been wasted in pursuing trifles, or one dedicated to the attainment of some lofty purpose?”

Sir Randol Fawkes

Chapter 2
The Faith That Moved The Mountain